DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being disclosed by Johnston et al (2004/0084773 A1).

Pertaining to claim 1, Johnston teaches a method of forming a metal line of a semiconductor device, comprising the steps of:

forming an interlayer insulating film 12 on a semiconductor substrate 10;

forming a metal line shaped pattern 16 by etching the interlayer insulating film

forming a diffusion stopper film 20 in conformity with a whole surface of a resultant material in which the metal line shaped pattern is formed See Fig. 4;

forming a copper film 22 on the diffusion stopper film 20; forming a copper metal line by chemically and mechanically polishing [0023] the copper film 22 and the diffusion stopper film 20 above the interlayer insulating film 12

See Fig. 5 and 6;

attaching a titanium metal or a ruthenium metal 34a to only the copper metal line selectively See Fig. 10 and [0034-0037]; and annealing the attached titanium metal or ruthenium metal [0041].

Pertaining to claim 2, Johnston teaches the method according to Claim 1, wherein the step of attaching the ruthenium metal is performed by dipping the copper metal line into a ruthenium chloride (RuCl<sub>3</sub>) solution [0036].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Johnston.

Johnston teaches the features outlined previously but does not explicitly state that the anneal is done before the capping layer is deposited. Johnston does indicate that the layer 34b should be annealed at the end for stability of the capping layer. Extending this to each stage of formation of the layers would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide for a stable structure for each layer.

In re Japikse, 181 F.2d 1019, 86 USPQ 70 (CCPA 1950) (Claims to a hydraulic power press which read on the prior art except with regard to the position of the starting switch were held unpatentable because shifting the position of the starting switch would not have modified the operation of the device.); In re Kuhle, 526 F.2d 553, 188 USPQ 7 (CCPA 1975) (the particular placement of a contact in a conductivity measuring device was held to be an obvious matter of design choice). However, "The mere fact that a worker in the art could rearrange the parts of the reference device to meet the terms of the claims on appeal is not by itself sufficient to support a finding of obviousness. The prior art must provide a motivation or reason for the worker in the art, without the benefit of appellant's specification, to make the necessary changes in the reference device." Ex parte Chicago Rawhide Mfg. Co., 223 USPQ 351, 353 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1984).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3,4 and 6 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
